My Short Video on Taiwanese Culture

"It's so boring! Give me the remote control! I want to change the channel." is always the reponse when the youngsters watch the puppet show. The words they say make me think of my grandfather, who is dedicated to performing the puppet show all his life. When I was in my childhood, he often invited me to watch the show. After it ended, I enjoyed talking with him and having a spiritual conversation. Every time I recall these excited memories, I can't help but wail, and I'm thankful that he makes effort to add color to my monotonous life. In order to spread my grandfather's passion to more people, I decide to make a video that features the puppet show and is aimed at youngsters.

Making this big project done by myself is difficult and time-consuming. Nevertheless, I still do my best to make thorough preparations and do a lot of homework about how to shoot the video professionally. First, I will interview my grandfather and his like-minded friends to let the audience understand how the puppet show works. By doing so, they might show more respect to it. Second, arranging a short story that describes the importance of filial piety is needed. It is because my grandfather often puts emphasis on this virtue when he chats with me. In the process of making this video, I not only improve my ability of shooting the video but connect the traditional culture with our lives.
